

Stave Hill Ecological Park

The 1st Weekend in May

soundCamp

SAT 3 MAY

Explore the nature reserve.

Listen in the sound tent to a 24 hour broadcast of the sounds of daybreak, relayed live by streamers around the world.

SUN 4 MAY

International Dawn Chorus Day

Join us for a daybreak walk through the reserve and adjoining woodland, interpreted by an ornithologist.

Followed by breakfast.

Assemble at 04.30

10.00

Panel discussion: wildlife, sound, field recording in London, with Richard Beard, wildlife recordist at The London Sound Survey.

12.00

Practical workshop: building a streambox with a Raspberry Pi.

SAT 3 - SUN 4 MAY

CAMP OUT AT STAVE HILL ECOLOGY PARK

Tickets: FREE BOOKING ESSENTIAL

WE WELCOME DONATIONS to cover running costs. Suggested: £20 | £10 per person

The REVEIL broadcast begins at daybreak on Saturday (London time UTC 0+1) and runs until Sunday morning. There is a limited number of places to camp overnight at Stave Hill and listen to the sounds of daybreak in the morning.

Stave Hill is the oldest urban nature reserve in the UK, a successor to the site near Tower Bridge founded by the Trust for Urban Ecology in 1976. The reserve provides habitats for resident and migrant birds including kingfishers and nightingales, and a striking counterpoint to Canary Wharf just across the river.

There will be pizza on Saturday evening and breakfast on Sunday morning.

Assemble and pitch tents during Saturday

Places strictly limited.

For more information and to book:

info@soundtent.org

www.soundtent.org

STREAM

You can stream to the soundCamp. Set up a stream on MIXLR for laptop or mobile and follow REVEIL. We will include your stream in the broadcast. To appear on the global stream map, you can set up a temporary or permanent stream at Locus Sonus. Go to <http://locusonus.org/soundmap/admin/login/> to register, or get in touch.

